Li Kun Wu tells his son, who now lives in London, the story of his life in China, from the earliest days of his childhood, in childcare centre and later school, during the 1950s, to the China of the modern day. This is the story of a society in metamorphosis, a place of violent extremes due to the changes that were happening in the economy. These changes also had an impact on the love lives of its citizens, which the author explores with buckets of humor.
