A new edition in color of this masterpiece by Fred. Accompanied by a crow, this sublime work narrates the musings of Mr Renard as he wanders through a raw and magnificent natural landscape. An exquisitely contemplative album that covers all the big issues, including life, death, friendship, art, posterity, family, society, and freedom, all with a healthy dose of humor and surrealism. Initially published by Flammarion in black and white, Dargaud finally offers a color edition which maintains the original format of the author's work. This book serves both as a tribute to Fred and to Jules Renard.
