Jean-Pierre dreams of meeting women. Unfortunately, Jean-Pierre is also painfully shy. He's totally incapable of approaching a woman, and he completely loses his senses when a woman approaches him. And what's worse, he has to put up with snide remarks from his friends and unhelpful (if well-meaning) advice from his mother. In an attempt to improve his situation, he develops a technique for meeting girls which allows for his shyness: he starts slipping little notes into women's pockets suggesting that they meet. And it works! But now that he's got a few dates, he's going to have to choose... and be chosen!
