As the combination of colors of the rainbow sky turns into a white light, the silence of Berlin comes from the noise of rubble and ruins of a yesterday's world. Everywhere, one can hear the music of passing time. And to this music, Fred Capito is dancing, a kid who came to this world by chance, and who is going nowhere. On his way, he meets gypsies, ladies who offer him friendship, and he discovers that life can also lie between silk sheets. That is Berlin between the wars: hunger and friendship, survival and love, expedient and lust, the lights of life... And the deadly fury of the Nazis.
