On the way to an important meeting, Loup hears some music. He is inexplicably drawn to it. Before he knows it, he's taking part in an audition. And when they hand him a guitar, he discovers that he can play. Well, really well. He is hired to play in the band accompanying a beautiful singer. A romance soon blossoms between Loup and the pretty Miss Ti. But then one day, Loup is spotted by a music producer at one of their concerts. Cast aside by Miss Ti, he decides to try his hand at a solo career. The opportunities for Loup are endless, and soon he's making records and playing his own concerts. But it's not easy going from zero to superstar. Loup is just as lost and lonely as he was before. And how can you look ahead to the future when you don't know a thing about your past?
