Lova disappears in the Ardennes forest. Eight years later, she is found living among the wolves.

Naked, covered in wounds, wild. The wolf-child's delicate re-education begins. Thanks to Catherine, his mother, he makes spectacular progress: words are rediscovered, snatches of memories, smiles plucked from the void. But Lova must fight with all her might if she is not to give in to the call of her wolf brothers: a terrible, moving battle with an uncertain outcome.
