A plane full of children on their way to holiday camp crashes in the middle of a forest. Left to their own devices, the survivors try to figure out how to get out of the woods and back to civilization. But strange things happen that they don't understand. Who are the chicken-children that keep attacking them? Who is the talking fox who seems to be trying to help them? How come there are other plane wrecks in the exact same place if the crash was an accident?

They'll have to move quickly if they want to survive, because in the place called the "Lozère," everything is steeped in danger and mystery. A tale full of humor and suspense, accompanied by simple illustrations. Get ready for an adventure!
