Mexico City. Hector Campos, 15 years old, is a young street boy. His ability to make anyone believe anything leads him and his brother Jorge to get involved with the trafficking of pre-Columbian antiquities. Among the objects, an Inca mask attracts Hector's attention...

France. Siera Ladiba, 16 years old, fled her country in the midst of a civil war and found a host family. A gifted student, she is about to take her baccalaureate.

At home, a package is waiting for her containing a mask from Burbuto.

Al, a rather quiet 14-year-old skater, divides his life between his friends and his girlfriend, Ophelie. Al's name is actually Alicia. He lies to everyone about his sex, except his parents of course. His father is a theater director and collects antique masks. Among them, a Greek mask has always fascinated Al.

One student has noticed Al's dilemma. Gun(awan) would like so much to reassure him that he can be whoever he wants to be... but this young boy won't dare say a word. Painfully shy and reserved, he doesn't talk to anyone. His family also owns an ancestral mask from Bali...

They all try on their masks and discover they have powers. Siera, Al, and Gun also meet an old man named Jack, who tells them that the masks have chosen them. He reveals that each mask is looking for a person with a big secret to hide. They will have to accept who they really are to fully use their new powers because a threat is looming on the horizon: Hector uses his power to do evil and only the owner of a mask can remove another mask.
