Alexis is a lively, ebullient saxophonist, who is leading a bohemian life in Paris at the beginning of the '60s — but he has just been dumped by his girlfriend Mary, who is tired of his escapades. Alexis takes off after her in his beloved Peugeot 203 convertible, heading for Dinan, where he thinks Mary has gone. On the road, he will encounter a gallery of colorful characters, travel through magnificent landscapes and unique villages, drink a lot, get married (fraudulently), barely escape being beaten up, suffer terrible nightmares, and, finally, arrive at Dinan...
