Manchester, 1885. In a school in one of the poor districts, Elizabeth Griffith makes her pupils dream over a map of India. A good woman, she seeks to share her enthusiasm for the jewel of the British Empire with the pupils of the "New School". Unfortunately, in her family, it is forbidden to speak about this country that she's been dreaming of. Furthermore, her feminism, her militancy in favour of educating the most underprivileged drives her out of society...
