Sometimes our curiosity leads us on a journey we never could have imagined... Asa, an intrepid police officer, takes advantage of her recent suspension to clean up some of her father's old things. A police officer like her, he died on duty when she was still just a child. At least that's what she thought until she comes across an old police file and her father's service pistol.

Her investigation leads her from the Blue-Sky ghetto to the Citadel, an area that was apparently abandoned after an industrial accident. But the truth is stranger than it seems. The Citadel is in fact home to people who possess unusual powers, and one of them may know what really happened to Asa's father. Could it be that he's still alive?! Asa's thirst for the truth might end up changing all their lives.
