Judging by his appearance, you would forgive his sins without confession: Toupet is an adorable baby, blond and dressed in a blue layette. But do not dare ever leave him out of sight for five minutes or it starts raining catastrophes! Accompanied by the big dog Binette, Toupet indulges himself in all kinds of explorations or abandons himself to every new experience one can imagine (hammer-blows, study of the fountain, etc.), all mortally destructive for the house... It is not easy being the parent of such a child... A lovely series, sympathetic and joyful with an often caustic humour wherein young parents will recognise themselves. By Blesteau and Godard.
