Set traps, await your prey, and defend your catch from other predators, by whatever means necessary. That's the everyday life of this hunter and his dog, somewhere in time and space, in an undetermined epoch where man, too, is prey. Prey not without ways of protecting itself: the hunter carries with him a number of mysterious animal skins, which allow him to take on the abilities of the animal whose hide he's wearing. When he witnesses the destruction of a village and its inhabitants by a bloodthirsty monster, he decides to add a new hide to his collection! And so begins a hunt where the hunter can become the hunted, in a silent story brought to vivid life by Burniat and Michiels.
