Jamie Colgate, ex-copper in early retirement, has an obsession: to lay his hands on the guy who one day left him half dead and killed his beloved dog. But the dangerous criminal that he has been hunting down for over twenty years is far from an ordinary man. He has been carrying out murders for so long and with such efficiency that even the worst serial killers can not be compared to him. What human justice can be applied to someone that is more like a monster coming out of a closet than a human being.
